The DfE Online Education Resources website gives you access to Resources that are owned, managed and provided by Third Parties (the Resources). Resources made available through the lists are subject to Third Party Terms and Conditions and copyright law.

DfE Online Education Resources Disclaimer & Copyright Statement

DfE Online Education Resources Disclaimer

The DfE's Online Education Resources list is a list of currently free online educational resources which, except where otherwise indicated, DfE have assessed are reasonably likely to have overall educational value and which could be reasonably used by schools to support teachers to direct home learning for pupils from Early Years through to Key Stage 5. Anyone using it must exercise their own judgement in evaluating the Content of particular Resources and its suitability as a teaching tool for their own particular purposes. Parents and children may be guided by their schools and directed to use specific Resources.

It is your responsibility to assess whether the teaching materials, Content or teaching methods contained in individual Resources or in any linked Content are appropriate for your purposes.

The DfE does not at any time:

- verify whether the Resources that can be accessed through this website comply with the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and other legislation governing the processing of personal data nor has it carried out any independent security certification or tests. The security of any data that you supply to any Third Parties whose Resources are accessed through this website is your responsibility. You should undertake your usual steps in assessing an application which processes personal data for which you are the data controller before using the application. More details and resources about how you can assess applications can be found on the ICO Website (<https://ico.org.uk/for-organisations/>).
- carry out any detailed and systematic technical review or quality assessment of the Resources (including any updates) or seek to verify whether they are suitable for use by all types of end user.
- provide any guarantee, condition or warranty as to the accuracy, reliability, suitability or completeness of any Resources for schools or children or any particular class of user or accept any responsibility for the currency, security, availability, compatibility, suitability, reliability or freedom from damaging software or for any other similar qualities or features of the Resources uploaded through the DfE Online Education Resources website or for the results of any actions taken in reliance on the DfE Online Education Resources or how it is used. Inclusion of a link to a Resource does not imply that DfE endorses or approves its Content.

In addition, you must not assume that the list of Resources on the DfE Online Education Resources List is exhaustive, or that sources or resources that have been omitted are of no value or inappropriate as an online educational support.
