Annex B - Working with partners to create a shared local social prescribing plan

What is being asked of local partners?

NHS England wants to encourage all local partners to work together to create shared local social prescribing plans for 2020/21 in each CCG area. For those areas who developed CCG plans during 2019/20, they should now work to review and develop those plans. This will include identifying how ICSs, CCGs and PCNs are working with partners to develop social prescribing and community-based approaches. Learning from these plans will be gathered to inform an implementation framework during 2020/21.

Why?

Existing practice shows there are already many areas with mature social prescribing connector schemes, mainly commissioned by CCGs and local authorities and typically provided by local VCSE organisations. Many social prescribing link workers are already working from within, or working closely with, primary care teams, supporting the health and wellbeing of patients by taking referrals from within primary care and across local systems.

In embedding social prescribing link workers within multi-disciplinary teams, PCNs have the flexibility to engage link workers themselves, or to work in partnership with existing local social prescribing connector schemes to provide social prescribing services. PCNs can use whatever contractual arrangements work best at local level to facilitate these partnerships. It is important, therefore, that all local partners, including CCGs, local authorities, PCNs, social prescribing schemes and VCSE leaders work together to find the best local arrangements for embedding social prescribing services in PCNs and that, regardless of the engagement model, link workers collaborate in local areas, to overcome isolation, make best use of limited resources and develop strong connections with local diverse communities and partner agencies.

What is being asked of PCNs?

PCN leaders are encouraged to work collaboratively with their CCG social prescribing leads, local authority commissioners, existing social prescribing schemes, VCSE leaders and other partners to develop a shared social prescribing plan.

This partnership approach will help the PCN move towards a 'population health' approach in working to reduce health inequalities, recognising the wider 'social' determinants of health and the impact on a person's health and well-being. It will help PCNs and partners to maximise resources, share learning, nurture the diversity of community assets and avoid the risk of link workers becoming isolated. Local partners should work together, building on existing social prescribing practice to achieve the following:

- enable every PCN to employ or contract for social prescribing link worker services, as a key part of their multi-disciplinary team
- build on existing local social prescribing schemes, avoiding disinvestment in current schemes or duplication, and enabling all social prescribing link workers

OFFICIAL

(wherever they are employed) to work together as a wider team across the local area

- recruit new additional social prescribing link workers (using the national funding available to PCNs, via the Network Contract DES) to support expanding social prescribing services across PCNs
- work together with local partners to nurture the diversity of community assets, support VCSE organisations and community groups, including religious and faith-based groups through development support.

In developing, delivering and reviewing the plan, proper consideration will be given to the requirements of the Public Sector Equality Duty and the health inequality duties. This should be through the completion of a live equality and health inequalities impact assessment to ensure all local diverse and vulnerable groups are being considered as part of the plan and implementation.

To support the above, an action plan template and a self-evaluation checklist has been created to help CCG commissioners, local authorities, PCNs, social prescribing connector schemes, VCSE leaders, people with lived experience and other partners work together to create a shared local plan for social prescribing.

Local shared plan for social prescribing template 2020-21

Aim: This template has been created to help CCG commissioners, local authorities, PCNs, social prescribing connector schemes, VCSE leaders, people with lived experience and other partners work together to create a shared local plan for social prescribing, which;

- enables every PCN to integrate social prescribing link workers within their multi-disciplinary team either through direct employment or contracting for a social prescribing link worker service
- builds on existing local social prescribing schemes, avoiding duplication and enabling all social prescribing link workers (wherever they are employed) to work together as a wider team across the local area
- recruits new additional social prescribing link workers (using the national funding available to PCNs)
- works together to nurture community assets, support VCSE organisations and community groups, through funding and development support.

Questions: To what extent are staff:	Self-assessment 5 = high 1 = low	Rationale
1. Comfortable to bring all local partners together (including PCNs, local authorities, existing social prescribing schemes and VCSE leaders) to create a shared local plan for social prescribing.
2. Able to support PCNs to work collaboratively with existing local social prescribing schemes to recruit additional link workers? This may include sub-contracting or seconding new, additional link workers into PCN Multi-Disciplinary Teams from existing social prescribing connector schemes, using the most effective contractual mechanisms available, to be determined locally.
3. Confident that local PCNs understand the difference between existing practice staff who undertake care navigation and social prescribing link workers who are employed to work intensively with people who struggle to make their own connections?
4. Able to support PCNs to use national SNOMED social prescribing codes: 871711000000103 Social prescribing declined 871731000000106 Referral to social prescribing service
5. Confident to work collaboratively with your local authority and other partners to support the VCSE sector to receive social prescribing referrals from social prescribing link workers, including providing local funding and development support to community groups and VCSE organisations.

Sample job description – social prescribing link worker

Purpose of the role

Social prescribing empowers people to take control of their health and wellbeing through referral to 'link workers' who give time, focus on 'what matters to me' and take a holistic approach to an individual's health and wellbeing, connecting people to diverse community groups and statutory services for practical and emotional support. Link workers also support existing groups to be accessible and sustainable and help people to start new community groups, working collaboratively with all local diverse partners.

Social prescribing link workers will work as a key part of the primary care network (PCN) multi-disciplinary team. Social prescribing can help PCNs to strengthen community and personal resilience, reduce health inequalities (in relation to timely access and outcomes) and wellbeing inequalities by addressing the wider determinants of health, such as debt, poor housing and physical inactivity, by increasing people's active involvement with their local diverse communities. It particularly works for people with long term conditions (including support for mental health), for people who are lonely or isolated, or have complex social needs which affect their wellbeing.

Salary: £24,907- £30,615

Key responsibilities

1. Working with direct supervision by a GP, take referrals from the PCN's Core Network Practices and from a wide range of agencies, including pharmacies, wider multi-disciplinary teams, hospital discharge teams, allied health professionals, fire service, police, job centres, social care services, housing associations, and voluntary, community and social enterprise (VCSE) organisations (list not exhaustive).

2. Provide personalised support to individuals, their families and carers to take control of their health and wellbeing, live independently and improve their health access and outcomes, as a key member of the PCN multi-disciplinary team. Develop trusting relationships by giving people time and focus on 'what matters to me'. Take a holistic approach, based on the person's priorities and the wider determinants of health. Co-produce a simple personalised care and support plan to improve health and wellbeing, introducing or reconnecting people to appropriate community groups and statutory services. The role will require managing and prioritising your own caseload, in accordance with the needs, priorities and any urgent support required by individuals on the caseload. It is vital that you have a strong awareness and understanding of when it is appropriate or necessary to refer people back to other health professionals/agencies, when the person's needs are beyond the scope of the link worker role – e.g. when there is a mental health need requiring a qualified practitioner.

3. Work with a diverse range of people and communities, to draw on and increase the strengths and capacities of local communities, enabling local VCSE organisations and community groups (including faith groups) to receive social prescribing referrals.
4. Alongside other members of the PCN multi-disciplinary team, work collaboratively with all local diverse partners to contribute towards supporting the local VCSE organisations and community groups to become sustainable and that community assets are nurtured, through sharing intelligence regarding any gaps or problems identified in local provision with commissioners and local authorities.
5. Social prescribing link workers will have a role in educating non-clinical and clinical staff within their PCN multi-disciplinary teams on what other services are available within the community and how and when patients can access them. This may include verbal or written advice and guidance.

Key Tasks

Referrals

- Promote social prescribing, its role in self-management, addressing health inequalities and the wider determinants of health.
- As part of the PCN multi-disciplinary team, build relationships with staff in GP practices within the local PCN, attending relevant MDT meetings, giving information and feedback on social prescribing.
- Be proactive in developing strong links with all local agencies to encourage referrals, recognising what they need to be confident in the service to make appropriate referrals.
- Work in partnership with all local agencies to raise awareness of social prescribing and how partnership working can reduce pressure on statutory services, improve health access and outcomes and enable a holistic approach to care.
- Provide referral agencies with regular updates about social prescribing, including training for their staff and how to access information to encourage appropriate referrals.
- Seek regular feedback about the quality of service and impact of social prescribing on referral agencies.
- Be proactive in encouraging equality and inclusion, through self-referrals and connecting with all diverse local communities, particularly those communities that statutory agencies may find hard to reach.

Provide personalised support

- Meet people on a one-to-one basis, making home visits where appropriate within organisations' policies and procedures. Give people time to tell their stories and focus on 'what matters to me'. Build trust and respect with the person, providing non-judgemental and non-discriminatory support, respecting diversity and lifestyle choices. Work from a strength-based approach focusing on a person's assets.
- Be a friendly and engaging source of information about health, wellbeing and prevention approaches.

- Help people identify the wider issues that impact on their health and wellbeing, such as debt, poor housing, being unemployed, loneliness and caring responsibilities.
- Work with the person, their families and carers and consider how they can all be supported through social prescribing.
- Help people maintain or regain independence through living skills, adaptations, enablement approaches and simple safeguards.
- Work with individuals to co-produce a simple personalised support plan to address the person's health and wellbeing needs – based on the person's priorities, interests, values, cultural and religious/faith needs and motivations – including what they can expect from the groups, activities and services they are being connected to and what the person can do for themselves to improve their health and wellbeing.
- Where appropriate, physically introduce people to culturally appropriate community groups, activities and statutory services, ensuring they are comfortable, feel valued and respected. Follow up to ensure they are happy, able to engage, included and receiving good support.
- Where people may be eligible for a personal health budget, help them to explore this option as a way of providing funded, personalised support to be independent, including helping people to gain skills for meaningful employment, where appropriate.
- Seek advice and support from the GP supervisor and/or identified individual(s) to discuss patient-related concerns (e.g. abuse, domestic violence and support with mental health), referring the patient back to the GP or other suitable health professional if required.

Support community groups and VCSE organisations to receive referrals

- Forge strong links with a wide range of local VCSE organisations, community and neighbourhood level groups, utilising their networks and building on what's already available to create a menu of diverse community groups and assets, who promote diversity and inclusion.
- Develop supportive relationships with local diverse VCSE organisations, culturally appropriate community groups and statutory services, to make timely, appropriate and supported referrals for the person being introduced.

Work collectively with all local partners to ensure community groups are strong and sustainable

- Work with commissioners and local partners to identify unmet diverse needs within the community and gaps in community provision.
- Encourage people who have been connected to community support through social prescribing to volunteer and give their time freely to others, building their skills and confidence and strengthening community resilience.
- Develop a team of volunteers within your service to provide 'buddying support' for people, starting new groups and finding creative community solutions to local issues.
- Encourage people, their families and carers to provide peer support and to do things together, such as setting up new community groups or volunteering.
- Provide a regular 'confidence survey' to community groups receiving referrals, to ensure that they are strong, sustained and have the support they need to be part of social prescribing.

General tasks

Data capture

- Work sensitively with people, their families and carers to capture key information, enabling tracking of the impact of social prescribing on their health and wellbeing.
- Encourage people, their families and carers to provide feedback and to share their stories about the impact of social prescribing on their lives.
- Support referral agencies to provide appropriate information about the person they are referring. Provide appropriate feedback to referral agencies about the people they referred.
- Work closely within the MDT and with GP practices within the PCN to ensure that the social prescribing referral codes are inputted into clinical systems (as outlined in the Network Contract DES), adhering to data protection legislation and data sharing agreements.

Professional development

- Work with your supervising GP and/or line manager (if different) to undertake continual personal and professional development, taking an active part in reviewing and developing the roles and responsibilities.
- Adhere to organisational policies and procedures, including confidentiality, safeguarding, lone working, information governance, equality, diversity and inclusion training and health and safety.
- Work with your supervising GP to access regular ‘clinical supervision’, to enable you to deal effectively with the difficult issues that people present.

Miscellaneous

- Work as part of the healthcare team to seek feedback, continually improve the service and contribute to business planning.
- Contribute to the development of policies and plans relating to equality, diversity and health inequalities.
- Undertake any tasks consistent with the level of the post and the scope of the role, ensuring that work is delivered in a timely and effective manner.
- Duties may vary from time to time, without changing the general character of the post or the level of responsibility.

Job Title: Social Prescribing Link Worker
Working hours: 37.5 hours per week, full time
Rate of pay: £24,907- £30,615
Contract:
Closing date:
Interview date:

We are looking to recruit to the post of social prescribing link worker, to work within our primary care network multi-disciplinary healthcare team, providing 1:1 personalised support to people who are referred to them by team members and local agencies.

This post empowers people to take control of their health and wellbeing by giving time to focus on 'what matters to me'. The social prescribing link worker will build trusting relationships with people, create a shared personalised care and support plan and connect them to local, diverse and culturally appropriate community groups, VCSE organisations and services. They will also work with a diverse range of partners to provide support to community groups and VCSE organisations involved in social prescribing.

This role helps people to work on their wider health and wellbeing, specifically addressing health access and outcomes and wider determinants of their health, such as debt, poor housing and physical inactivity, as well as other lifestyle issues and low-level mental health concerns by increasing people's active involvement with their local communities. This approach particularly helps people with long term conditions (including support for mental health), people who are lonely or isolated, or who have complex social needs which affect their wellbeing.

You must be a good listener, have time for people and be committed to supporting local communities to care for each other. You should have experience of working positively with people facing complex social and emotional challenges. You will have great interpersonal skills in supporting people, community groups and local organisations.

The postholder will work with a diverse range of people from different cultural and social backgrounds. The ability to work confidently and effectively in a diverse, and sometimes challenging environment is essential. We are committed to having a workforce in which people from diverse backgrounds are supported and empowered to work with local communities to improve health access and outcomes for all and provide culturally appropriate and responsive public services.

Sample interview questions

Example scenario (or substitute a real-life example from your practice)

Please ask all candidates to arrive 15 minutes early, give them this scenario and ask them to prepare some points to discuss at interview:

An older woman (Malia) has been attending GP consultations at least every week for anxiety and insomnia over the past few months. Her daughter (Asha) needs support with her mental health and has two autistic sons, aged 7 and 5, who Malia helps to care for. Malia is worried that Asha cannot cope anymore and may carry out her threat of suicide.

How would you go about supporting this family and what would your approach be?

You have 10 minutes at the start of the interview to outline your approach.

Example Interview questions:

1. Why do you want this post and what do you bring to it?
2. What skills/qualities will you bring to the primary care network multi-disciplinary team?
3. Please tell us about a time when you have supported someone who is experiencing complex personal circumstances, such as long-term health conditions, anxiety or practical issues, such as debt and poor housing. How did you support them and what were the challenges in providing support?
4. Tell us about when you have led or participated in partnership working. Please explain your role, what you did to support the partnership, what you achieved together and what the challenges were?
5. The social prescribing link worker role aims to reduce health inequalities, by supporting people to overcome exclusion or disadvantage. Can you tell us why health inequalities are bad for people and give us an example of where you have practically helped someone to overcome exclusion, reduce disadvantage or discrimination?
6. How would you support someone who is distressed, angry and emotional? Please explain what you would do to support them now and how would you help them in the future to overcome their issues?
7. Local community groups and organisations change leaders frequently. How would you keep up-to-date with understanding the people and development needs of local community groups and organisations?
8. What would you need to do to ensure that local community groups are safe and inclusive, to enable you to connect people to them?
9. Please can you tell us about a piece of work where you have had to record information and monitor the impact of the work? How did you go about this, what did you learn from the process?
10. How would you support your PCN colleagues to strengthen links between the GP practices within the primary care network and local community?
11. If someone were to describe your approach to work in three words, what would the three words be?

Annex D - A framework for social prescribing link workers

This diagram provides a summary of the key actions that social prescribing link workers need to take to be effective in their roles.

The table below summarises what the actions mean in detail, from the perspective of people receiving support and what the link worker needs to do to perform their role effectively:

1. Value 'what matters to me'
How the person receiving support feels: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • I am listened to, understood and 'what matters to me' is central to all our work together. • I am respected and treated with dignity as an individual. • I trust the person I am working with and they have my confidence. • My human rights are protected. I do not experience discrimination. • I experience warm, compassionate, personalised care and support. • If I raise a concern or make a complaint, it is acted on quickly.
To be effective, link workers need to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Listen actively and show you understand what matters most to the person. • Provide non-judgemental and non-discriminatory support. • Check understanding and reflect what people say. • Put what matters most to the person at the heart of every conversation. • Be warm and friendly. • Treat each person with dignity, be culturally sensitive and respect diversity. • Where a person is not happy with their support, enable them to make a complaint.

2. Recognise the wider determinants of health and wellbeing

How the person receiving support feels:

- What matters to me is central to our work together. Whatever I am struggling with in my life is recognised as important and can be heard.
- I am asked about my lifestyle preferences and aspirations and I am supported to achieve these.
- I am encouraged and helped to achieve my full potential.
- I am connected to support which enables me to feel a sense of belonging, deals with any practical issues I may have and gives me joy.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Understand how health access and outcomes and the wider determinants, such as housing, food, access to green space, work and transport impact on a person's health and wellbeing.
- Give people time to talk about the whole of their lives, what matters most, the people they care about, what they like to do with their time, what their hopes and dreams are.
- Find creative ways to connect and introduce people to their neighbours and their diverse communities.
- Work within professional boundaries, ensuring that any practical issues that stand in the way of a person managing their health and wellbeing, such as not having enough food, money or secure housing, are addressed as a priority.
- Be non-judgemental and non-discriminatory in recognising and upholding the lifestyle preferences and aspirations of people.
- Seek to involve all diverse communities, respect diversity and promote inclusion.
- Not act outside their remit and escalate clinical issues back to clinicians within the PCN.

3. Personalised care and support plans

How the person receiving support feels:

- I am listened to and supported to make informed choices, so that I can have more control over the things that matter to me.
- I am fully involved in creating a support plan which summarises who I am and what's important to me, what support I can expect to receive and what I can do to support myself.
- My plan is useful to me, as well as to people who support me. I have my own copy, which I can use at home.
- I am given enough information about the services I am connected to. I know what to expect from the support I am connected to.
- I have information and knowledge about what I can do to support myself, to improve my health and wellbeing.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Listen and then provide clear information about the choices a person has and explain the choices, so that the person understands everything.
- Develop a rapport with the person and understand what matters to them.
- Facilitate strength-based conversations, through motivational coaching, building on the person's assets.
- Help the person to decide what support they want to be connected to, based on what matters to them.
- Where appropriate, use the Patient Activation Measure^{®1} (PAM[®]) to identify what level of support people need and how 'activated' they are to manage their own health and wellbeing.
- Assist the person to think through the practical issues they will face in getting involved in this support, such as how they will get to a community group meeting, how they will feel being introduced to new people and what their fears are.
- Give lots of opportunities for the person to ask questions.
- Create clear goals with the person about what they want to achieve.
- Create a clear personalised care and support plan with the person, based on their priorities.
- Ensure that the support plan is 'owned' by the person and is useful to them.
- Where appropriate, review the personalised care and support plan with the person, at regular, agreed intervals, to assess progress and make changes.

4. Introduce people to community groups and services

How the person receiving support feels:

- I am introduced to community groups that I am interested in (if appropriate), so that I feel confident to get involved and make friends. I am supported to make my own choices about what groups I am connected to.
- The community groups and support services that I am connected to (such as adult learning, welfare benefits advice) are diverse, welcoming and quickly enable me to feel part of the group.
- If I need someone to go with me to the first group session, to help me take that first step, this support is available.
- Whatever I bring to the community group I'm connected to is seen as valuable. Group leaders look for my strengths. They encourage me to feel comfortable, get involved, volunteer and have fun.
- I am involved in providing feedback to my link worker about my progress within my community group.
- Whatever my interests, there is a broad, diverse range of local community groups to choose from, which are culturally sensitive and cater for my needs.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Work with local partners to identify diverse local community services, groups and VCSE organisations in the local neighbourhood and beyond.
- Create an easy to read 'menu' of diverse local community groups and services, which can be used to explain what support is available locally.
- Include small, informal community groups in connecting people through social prescribing, which may not have formal policies and procedures.

¹ The use of PAM[®] is licensed to NHS England from Insignia Health LLC

- Arrange to go with the person to their first community group session (where needed). Support them to get through the door, get settled and feel comfortable.
- Work with local befriending groups or recruit volunteers to act as 'buddies' for people who may need support to get involved in community groups over time, recognising that volunteers need to be supported to be effective and stay involved.
- Carefully introduce people who need ongoing support to get involved in community groups with volunteer buddies, building on their strengths and interests.
- Build in regular catch-ups with local community groups and VCSE organisations, to check what capacity they have for new people and to overcome any challenges.
- Use the confidence survey to review development needs of local groups, in line with the Common Outcomes Framework.
- Where there are gaps in local community activities encourage commissioners and local infrastructure agencies to support the development of diverse new community groups.

5. Safeguard vulnerable individuals

How the person receiving support feels:

- Information about me is kept safe and confidential. It is only shared with the groups and agencies that I am connected to with my permission, on a 'need to know' basis.
- The people supporting me within community groups and agencies know about safeguarding people from harm and take active steps to ensure that I am not put in harm's way.
- Where I feel vulnerable within community groups, I am supported to trust my judgements and to safely share my concerns. I can easily be referred back to my link worker, PCN or to other agencies.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Work within the PCN multi-disciplinary team to create safe, confidential storage systems for the social prescribing service, which comply with legal GDPR requirements and NHS policies.
- Work with their PCN to put in place local data sharing agreements, for the sharing of personal information about people with other agencies, including community groups.
- Take a proportionate, common sense approach to connecting people to community groups, seeking to include small, informal, volunteer-led groups.
- Use the quality assurance prompt sheets and/or any locally agreed quality assurance processes to make agreements with community groups and voluntary organisations.
- Seek guidance from your PCN line manager where you are unsure whether local groups are safe to be involved in social prescribing.
- Encourage local partners to make training available to local community groups and VCSE organisations in safeguarding people from harm, data protection and first aid.

6. Work in partnership

How the person receiving support feels:

- Wherever I am in the local system, local agencies can refer me to a social prescribing link worker for support. I can refer myself to a link worker.
- Local agencies work together to provide joined-up support. If I have a problem, I do not have to deal with lots of different agencies, who pass me on and don't talk to each other.
- Creative solutions are found to common problems, which show me that local agencies care about people like me.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Build trusting relationships with a wide range of local agencies and partners.
- Help local agencies and partners to understand the role of a social prescribing link worker.
- Encourage local agencies to make appropriate referrals.
- Work together with local commissioners, other PCNs, VCSE leaders and other partners to create a shared local plan for social prescribing.

7. Keep accurate records

How the person receiving support feels:

- Information about me is safe and confidential and is not shared without my permission.
- Information about me can only be shared with the community groups and agencies that I am connected to, with my permission, on a need-to-know basis.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Understand and comply with GDPR and information governance.
- Have access to PCN information storage and data systems, as part of their role within the PCN multi-disciplinary team.
- Work with their PCN to create and use safe, confidential storage systems for information about people, which comply with legal requirements and NHS policies.
- Ensure that they collect timely referral data about people referred to social prescribing.

8. Measure impact

How the person receiving support feels:

- When I first meet the link worker, I am supported to think about my wellbeing and how I'm feeling about my life.
- After six months, I am asked again to think about my wellbeing, which enables me to see my progress and reflect on whether, or how, my life has improved.

To be effective, link workers need to:

- Use the social prescribing SNOMED codes to record social prescribing referrals taken up.
- Support PCN staff to use the social prescribing SNOMED codes, when making a referral to the link worker.

OFFICIAL

- Evaluate the person's wellness journey, by using the ONS wellbeing scale with everyone who is referred, at the start of their work with the social prescribing link worker, and at six monthly intervals.

This framework builds on the Person-Centred Approaches Framework developed by Health Education England (2017), which may also provide helpful guidance:

Annex E - What to include in a link worker induction

Area to cover	The link worker can...	When completed/ notes:
Overview of social prescribing: what difference can social prescribing make to people's lives?	Explain what difference social prescribing can make to people's lives.
Overview of the social prescribing link worker role within the PCN MDT.	Recognise the essential functions of the social prescribing link worker role within the PCN multi-disciplinary team.
Introduction to equality, diversity and inclusion.	Explain what active steps are being taken to ensure that all communities are included in social prescribing and how the service meets the public sector equality duty.
How social prescribing can support people to improve the wider determinants of their health and wellbeing.	Understand how health inequalities (in access and outcomes) and the wider determinants impact on personal health and wellbeing. Explain what link workers can do to improve the wider determinants of personal health and wellbeing.
Who can benefit from our social prescribing service?	Describe who can benefit from social prescribing.
Provide a personalised care approach, through motivational coaching, giving time to focus on 'what matters to me'.	Demonstrate how to work with people around 'what matters to me', taking a motivational coaching approach. Involve people in decisions about them, based on the principle of 'nothing about me, without me'.
Creating and maintaining effective professional boundaries.	Explain how a link worker can support people, whilst avoiding creating dependent relationships and being too involved in people's lives.
Developing personalised care and support plans together.	Create a shared personalised support plan with the person.
Introduction to PCNs – how they will support local populations to take more control over their health and wellbeing.	Explain the role of the PCN in developing a wider, proactive approach to population health.

OFFICIAL

Introduction to the primary care network multi-disciplinary healthcare team (MDT), including shadowing reception staff.	Understand the different roles within the MDT. What support they can expect from the MDT. What support they will need to provide to the MDT.
Introduction to GP supervisor and first point of contact in each of the PCN's member GP practices.	Arrange regular meetings with their GP supervisor for line management and supervision. Work with the first point of contact to develop effective working arrangements with all staff within the member practices and to ensure that all staff can support the link worker role.
Partnership working	Identify key partners within local agencies that they will need to work alongside.
Introducing people to community groups	Provide information about culturally appropriate community groups and VCSE organisations in the local areas – who are they, what support do they give?
Connecting people to community groups	Establish supportive, developmental relationships with community groups.
Safeguarding vulnerable individuals who are connected to community groups	Demonstrate how to use the quality assurance prompt sheets with community groups and VCSE organisations to build confidence to connect people to community groups.
Data protection	Work with members of the PCN to create safe data storage systems for referral data, in line with GDPR regulations.
Record keeping	Use the data storage systems created to record core data about referrals.
Access and setting up systems to measure impact	Plan how to introduce the ONS4 and PAM tool to create a baseline for impact measurement on the person. Access GP IT systems to use the SNOMED codes to register social prescribing referrals.

In addition to the above, please see NHS England and NHS Improvement's welcome and induction guide for all new link workers, which is available on the NHS England website: <https://www.england.nhs.uk/personalisedcare/social-prescribing/support-and-resources/>

Annex F - Supervision and learning for social prescribing link workers

First point of contact in each GP practice

The PCN's member GP practices must each identify a first point of contact for general advice and support for the social prescribing link worker. The role of the first point of contact will be to enable the social prescribing link worker to develop effective working arrangements with all staff within the member practices and to ensure that all staff can support the link worker role. This role could become a designated 'social prescribing champion' within each member practice.

The role of a GP supervisor

The PCN must appoint a GP supervisor (if different to the first point of contact) to provide direct supervision for the social prescribing link worker. This GP supervisor will line manage the work of the social prescribing link worker on a day-to-day basis. They should meet regularly with the link worker to provide line management and supervision, discuss and overcome or address any issues or concerns and ensure the link worker can succeed in the role. This will include ensuring that the link worker is able to raise patient-related concerns (for example, abuse, domestic violence, or other safeguarding issues) and refer individuals back to other health professionals as relevant, for further support, review or monitoring.

Where the social prescribing link worker is employed by a partner 'social prescribing provider' agency, the above GP supervisor will still be required. In this arrangement, the GP supervisor will need to additionally involve the partner organisation in regular progress updates about the link worker role, enabling clear lines of accountability, effective seamless joint working and problem-solving challenges together.

Access to 'clinical' or non-managerial supervision

In addition to the ongoing support received from the GP supervisor, the social prescribing link worker should have regular access to clinical or non-managerial supervision both with their GP supervisor and other relevant health professionals within the PCN. This 'clinical' or non-managerial supervision will enable the link worker to manage the emotional impact of their work and be guided by clinicians on dealing effectively with patient risk factors.

Arranging cover for lone link workers in PCNs

The GP supervisor should work with PCN staff to agree cover for when the social prescribing link worker is absent, to avoid a backlog of referrals and reputational damage, where patients are left waiting too long.

Learning for link workers

The Network Contract DES Specification 2020/21 sets out the requirements on PCNs to ensure that social prescribing link workers undertake the following for their learning and development:

OFFICIAL

- completion of the NHS England online learning programme: <https://www.e-lfh.org.uk/programmes/social-prescribing/>
- enrolled in or qualified in appropriate training as set out by the Personalised Care Institute
- attendance of peer support networks co-ordinated by NHS England at ICS and/or STP level.

For further information on NHS England's learning support offer for social prescribing link workers, visit <https://www.england.nhs.uk/personalisedcare/social-prescribing/support-and-resources/>

NHS England facilitates an online community of practice for social prescribing link workers. This can be accessed by emailing england.socialprescribing@nhs.net and asking to be invited to the online social prescribing platform.

There is a wider PCN online platform, which link workers may also wish to join. For more information, email england.pcn@nhs.net. This online community is set up to support all staff in PCNs.

Publications, updates and resources are regularly shared within the online communities of practice.

In future years, it is envisaged that the Health Education England Primary and Community Care Training Hubs will take an active role in supporting education and training of staff within PCNs, including social prescribing link workers.

Annex G - Creating personalised care and support plans

Where a person needs ongoing support, the social prescribing link worker should work with the person to create a simple personalised care and support plan. Each person should be given their own copy of their plan to use at home, so that it is a practical, useful resource. The plan is a summary of:

- what matters to me
- how best to support me – what people need to know about me
- any health conditions that groups and agencies need to know about
- my goals
- what support I am being connected to, such as community groups and services
- what I can do to support myself to meet my goals
- review – how it's going and what changes have taken place
- permissions – to share stories, be involved in evaluation and satisfaction surveys.

Top tips for creating simple care and support plans

- Build rapport with the person. They need to trust you to create a shared plan.
- Make them feel as comfortable as possible, so they are relaxed. An informal conversation will enable you to tease out information more easily.
- Start the conversation with finding out what matters to the person, but don't just ask them outright, as it may be too difficult a question. Ask them about important people and what they like to do together. You may want to ask about the things that make a good day and what makes a bad day, including what people can do to help with the bad days. Ask them about the things they like to do each week that they would miss if they couldn't do and ask them about the things that they would never leave home without.
- Use the person's own words within the plan, as much as possible, not professional-speak.
- Keep checking what the person wants you to write. If they want to write the plan with your support, that may also work. Be flexible.
- Use open questions and ask helpful follow-ups such as 'tell me more' to tease out information.
- Create clear goals together, which are realistic and reflect the person's priorities. An easy way to find out the person's priorities for change is to ask them what is working and what is not working. The things that are not working can be things they can set goals to address.
- Discuss together what the person can expect from the support they are being connected to, so that they have realistic expectations.
- It may be helpful to think through together about any worries the person may have about being introduced to groups or agencies.
- Help the person to think about what they can do for themselves, potentially with the support of those closest to them to help them achieve their goals.
- Be clear about what the person can do if it's not working, if they need to come back to you.

Annex H - Quality assurance for social prescribing

Quality assurance for connecting people through social prescribing needs to be more flexible than the quality assurance that NHS organisations are used to. This is because link workers connect people to small, informal, often volunteer-led community groups, which are creative and dynamic, but which tend not to have formal policies or procedures.

Social prescribing supports individuals to make informed choices and judgments about what groups they feel confident to engage with. It is therefore essential that link workers in PCNs do not become stifled by over-bureaucratic responses to health and safety and risk-taking. Their role is to support people to make their own choices and to empower people to cope with social situations, such as community group meetings.

Voluntary organisations and community groups involved in social prescribing should have appropriate arrangements in place to ensure that new people have a safe and positive experience. Quality assurance is a delicate balance, which must be proportionate and take a common-sense approach.

In some local areas, where social prescribing is well established, there may already be effective quality assurance processes that partners are happy to retain. This guidance does not seek to replace existing quality assurance practices which work for local partners. It has been created for local areas new to social prescribing and where quality assurance practices need strengthening.

Quality assurance principles

1. Social prescribing supports people to make informed choices about engaging with community groups and VCSE organisations.
2. PCNs cannot be held responsible for the choices and actions that people take after being connected to community groups and VCSE organisations. This is down to personal choice for the person.
3. Link workers (on behalf of PCNs) can make basic quality assurance checks, using the prompt sheets provided, to ensure they are not connecting people to community groups and organisations which they consider to be unsafe.
4. The prompt sheets are designed to develop constructive conversations between the link worker and the VCSE organisation or community group and building trusting relationships. They should help to build confidence and be inclusive, to celebrate informal groups and wherever possible, enable them to be involved.
5. This process should not be used in a rigid way to exclude smaller groups because they do not have formal policies. Many small, volunteer-led community groups, such as 'knit and natter' and men's groups which meet in the local pub provide excellent informal peer support. It would be unrealistic for them to have formal policies and procedures. The link worker should have constructive conversations, using scenarios, to help group members think about how they safeguard group members and vulnerable people.
6. Proportionality is required, as is taking a common-sense approach.

OFFICIAL

7. Where a safeguarding concern is raised by the person, a volunteer or staff member, there should be clear procedures for dealing with this swiftly and appropriately.
8. The process will improve the connections between health, social care and the community, facilitating more effective integration of local services.
9. An essential ingredient of quality assurance is ensuring that community groups are diverse, inclusive and culturally sensitive.

Two quality assurance prompt sheets have been created to help social prescribing link workers develop trusting relationships with community groups and organisations, to minimise risks. This process will enable the link worker to create a comprehensive menu of community activities.

Quality assurance prompt sheet 1 – for VCSE service provider organisations

Many voluntary organisations which provide services will already have quality assurance policies and procedures in place, particularly where they employ staff. This prompt sheet enables link workers to ask key questions of VCSE service provider organisations. It focuses on the necessary policies for quality assurance and gives examples of evidence that will enable link workers to connect people.

Quality assurance prompt sheet 2 – for small volunteer-led local community groups

Small, volunteer-led community groups provide informal community activities, enabling people to make friends, develop skills and confidence. However, these small local groups are unlikely to have written policies in place. This doesn't mean they shouldn't be connected through social prescribing. It requires a different approach, which is lighter-touch. Prompt sheet 2 enables link workers to have semi-structured conversations around the key elements of quality assurance. These questions will enable partners to work through scenarios together and build more informal evidence, to reduce risks.

Quality assurance process

1. Initial discussion between the social prescribing link worker and voluntary organisation or community group, with regards to potentially being involved in social prescribing.
2. Link worker and community group/organisation work through the appropriate prompt sheets together and provide supporting information, as evidence of quality assurance.
3. Agreement to connect is made by the link worker, on behalf of the PCN.
4. Where the link worker is not confident to connect, they should refer to their PCN line manager for guidance. They should work with the group to identify what they can do proactively to enable participation.
5. Agreement to connect is signed by a representative of the PCN (link worker) and the voluntary organisation or community group.
6. The quality assurance process should be reviewed annually, or whenever there is a significant change of group leadership, which may be more often in the case of small, volunteer-led community groups.
7. Link workers and participating group or organisation should have regular catch-ups (at least every 6 months) to review progress and lessons learned. This will form the basis of continuous improvement, together with participation in any local evaluations.

Development support for community groups from local infrastructure agencies

Where local infrastructure agencies exist, such as councils for voluntary service (CVSs), their role is to provide development support to the local VCSE sector. The social prescribing link worker should therefore connect with, and support the work of, local infrastructure agencies, helping them to identify and meet development needs of local community groups and organisations.

It is important that social prescribing link workers operate in partnership with local community workers, infrastructure agencies, local area coordinators and whatever roles are in place locally to nurture community groups and assets towards sustainability. This avoids the burden of development support for community groups being left to link workers, on their own.

Learning opportunities for the local voluntary, community and social enterprise sector

Many local areas enable small voluntary and community groups to access free training around issues such as health and safety, first aid, safeguarding and risk assessment, such as local authorities and CVSs. The link worker should work with local partners to signpost VCSE groups and organisations to this training.

Annex I - Social prescribing referral systems

All link workers embedded within PCN multi-disciplinary teams should have access to the GP information system used within the PCN. To successfully track the number of people benefiting from social prescribing, and in accordance with the Network Contract DES Specification 2020/21, the following SNOMED codes must be used as flags for activity:

871711000000103 - Social prescribing declined (situation)

871731000000106 - Referral to social prescribing service (procedure)

In addition to the above codes, it would be helpful for social prescribing link workers within PCNs to collect the following information:

Date referred to link worker	For indication of waiting times
Who made the referral	To capture which agencies or individuals are making referrals to social prescribing
Reasons for referral	Why the person was referred to the link worker
Equality monitoring	To ensure that social prescribing works inclusively to meet the needs of all communities
Contacts with link worker	First contact – when, where Number of phone calls/meetings with link worker, including amount of time spent with the person.
Where the person is being connected to	Money/welfare rights Housing support Statutory services Employment support Practical support (e.g. aids/adaptations, food banks) Arts-based activities and groups Access to nature (such as gardening groups) Physical activity support Local neighbourhood groups Adult learning classes Other (please state)
Outcomes for the person	What support were they connected to? How did their wellbeing and activation levels change after 6 months? What changes took place? How satisfied were they with the service?

Annex J - Measuring impact: people's wellbeing

Everyone who is referred to the social prescribing link worker should be asked at regular intervals to give easy feedback about the impact of social prescribing on their personal wellbeing.

The table below includes easy, free tools which all link workers in PCNs are asked to use. The aim is for this information to be incorporated into the network dashboard in subsequent years. These tools have been chosen because they are free to use, widely used and tested across the country. The ONS4 tool is both short and easy to use.

Tool	What is it?	Why should it be used?	Who should it be used with?	How often should it be used?
ONS Wellbeing Scale	Four short questions (ONS4) on life satisfaction, how worthwhile they feel their life is, happiness and anxiety levels.	ONS4 is a free nationally validated wellbeing scale, based on the person's own views.	Everyone who is referred to the link worker service.	When the person is initially referred to the link worker and at least every 6 months, for one year.
Patient Activation Measure (PAM®)	PAM is a short questionnaire to identify the skills, knowledge and confidence of people to manage their own health and wellbeing. People are assessed at 4 levels of activation, which indicate how much support a person is likely to need.	This tool helps link workers to tailor their support more effectively. Free (licenses currently paid for and distributed by NHS England)	Everyone with above level 1 literacy standard (reading age of 12 years) and health needs; excluding severe mental health, dementia or learning disabilities.	When the person is initially referred to the link worker and every 6 months, for a minimum of one year.

Where social prescribing connector schemes already exist, they may have established impact measurement tools, such as Short Warwick Edinburgh Mental Wellbeing Scale (SWEMWBS), or the Wellbeing Star, which are working well. This guidance does not require local social prescribing schemes to stop using existing impact measurement tools, but to consider adding the above tools, where referrals are made to social prescribing link workers embedded in PCNs.

It is important to develop a consistent set of impact measures that are used across PCNs, to avoid different tools being used, which cannot be compared.

What should social prescribing link workers do with these tools?

- Use the web links above to find out more about the tools and use them in line with the above criteria, upon referral into the link worker service and at least every six months.
- Create a safe system for storing the information and capturing impact for a minimum of one year.

Full details of the tools are as follows:

1. Office of National Statistics Wellbeing Scale (ONS4)

Questions	Scale
Overall, how satisfied are you with your life nowadays?	0 – 10 scale 0 = not at all 10 = completely
Overall, to what extent do you feel the things you do in your life are worthwhile?	0 – 10 scale 0 = not at all 10 = completely
Overall, how happy did you feel yesterday?	0 – 10 scale 0 = not at all 10 = completely
On a scale where 0 is “not at all anxious” and 10 is “completely anxious”, overall, how anxious did you feel yesterday?	0 – 10 scale 0 = not at all anxious 10 = completely anxious

2. Patient Activation Measure (PAM®)

What is the Patient Activation Measure?

The PAM is a validated tool that measures people’s knowledge, skills and confidence (referred to as ‘patient activation’) in managing their own health and wellbeing. The PAM comprises 13 questions and the responses assign a score out of 100, matching the respondents to one of four levels of ‘activation’ (one being the lowest level and four being the highest). Each level of activation reveals insight into a range of health-related characteristics, including behaviours and outcomes.

Why is it important?

A person’s PAM score is indicative of how much/what type of support a person will need to be able to actively take part in managing their own health and wellbeing. Therefore, the PAM assessments will enable link workers to tailor services and support to ‘meet patients where they are’. This will ensure that those with the lower levels of knowledge, skills and confidence (levels one and two) can be identified to receive the additional support they require and enables link workers to make the most efficient use of their resources.

Higher activation levels correlate to healthier behaviours, better health outcomes and experiences of care, and fewer episodes of unplanned and emergency care. Therefore, changes within PAM score will support links between social prescribing and impacts on the wider health system.

How should it be applied?

A link worker should use the PAM on the initial meeting with a person. As far as possible, the questions should be read exactly as they appear without further explanation. The system will return an activation level, which will inform decisions on the level of support required (e.g. number of meetings and which intervention/support approach to adopt). Specific responses to questions could also be used to inform further discussions on the person's needs.

A follow up PAM assessment should be done at least every six months to measure any changes. A PAM reassessment can be undertaken sooner than six months (but no less than three months) if a person has accessed and undertaken the prescribed support/intervention. Link workers should complete online PAM training before implementing the PAM. Insignia Health will release online training to PCNs with PAM licenses (see below).

Who is PAM suitable for?

Though understanding people's knowledge, skills and confidence is important to their ongoing health, there are some people for whom PAM is not recommended. PAM should not be used with people with severe mental health problems, dementia, where a person has limited use of the English language or those with moderate to severe learning disabilities.

To understand the questions, a person will require level 1 national literacy standard (reading age of 12 years). However, if a person is struggling to understand the questions, as they should not be reworded, the PAM is likely to be unsuitable.

Due to the nature of some of the questions, PAM is only effective for those with an existing health need that requires some management; however, this can include those at risk of developing a health issue (e.g. smokers, pre-diabetes).

How do we get access to PAM?

PAM is licensed by Insignia Health. NHS England has purchased licenses from Insignia Health and will provide licenses for each PCN to use, free of charge. Each PCN will distribute PAM licenses, the administration tool and associated resources to link workers.

Annex K - Measuring impact: on community groups

It is important to capture the impact of social prescribing on local community groups and VCSE organisations involved in social prescribing.

Social prescribing link workers are asked to conduct a brief survey with community groups and VCSE organisations, every six months. The survey results can be used locally to:

- shape the capacity of community groups to receive new people through social prescribing
- capture the number of local volunteers
- identify gaps in community provision and facilitate the commissioning of new community support.

1. How many people have been connected to your group/organisation by link workers over the past 6 months?
2. To what extent do you agree with this statement?
'We have coped well with receiving new people through social prescribing link workers in the past 6 months.'
(Please tick one box below)
Strongly agree	Agree	Neither agree nor disagree	Disagree	Strongly disagree
3. If you strongly disagree with the question above, what number of new people would you have been able to cope with in the past 6 months?
4. How many volunteers are currently involved in your group or organisation?
5. Are there any gaps in community provision that you have identified, and which local commissioners need to be aware of? If so, please tell us more in the box below:

6. What development support does your group require from link workers and local partners over the next 6 months, to enable you to continue to be involved in social prescribing? Please use the box below to tell us more.
