Summary

Rough sleepers are vulnerable to coronavirus (Covid-19); they are more likely to have underlying health conditions than the wider population and to face difficulties in following public health advice on self-isolation, social distancing and hygiene. They can also face barriers in accessing public health information and healthcare. Shared facilities used by rough sleepers – such as day centres, hostels and night shelters – increase the risk of transmission of the virus.

The Covid-19 outbreak in spring 2020 prompted an unprecedented public health response from the UK Government, local authorities and the voluntary sector to protect the rough sleeping population.

‘Everyone In’ Initiative

On 26 March 2020, the Government asked local authorities in England to “help make sure we get everyone in”. The Chief Executive of the charity Crisis, Jon Sparkes, described the Government’s request as a “landmark moment.”

In response, local authorities across the country sought to ensure that people sleeping rough and in accommodation where it was difficult to self-isolate (such as shelters and assessment centres) were safely accommodated to protect them, and the wider public, from the risks of Covid-19. This was an enormous challenge for local authorities, who block-booked hotel rooms, secured other en-suite accommodation (e.g. B&Bs, student accommodation, holiday rentals etc) and worked with partners to ensure that those accommodated had the food, medical care and support they required.

The Government supported the ‘Everyone In’ initiative with £3.2 million in funding and guidance. Announcing the emergency funding, the Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government, Robert Jenrick, said:

Public safety and protecting the most vulnerable people in society from coronavirus is this government’s top priority. We are working closely with councils and charities to ensure they have the support they need throughout this period.

Next Steps Accommodation Programme

The Government set up a rough sleeping taskforce, spearheaded by Dame Louise Casey, to lead the next phase of the Government’s support for rough sleepers.

The taskforce is working with local authorities, charities, faith groups and other partners to ensure that as few people as possible return to life on the streets after the Covid-19 emergency. To enable this the Next Steps Accommodation Programme is providing two distinct funding streams for local authorities and their partners in 2020/21:

- £105 million for shorter-term/interim accommodation and immediate support (of which £91.5 million has been allocated to 274 local authorities and the remaining £13.5 million will be used to enable local authorities to tackle new or emerging challenges).
- £161 million to deliver 3,300 units of longer-term, move-on accommodation and support - to date over £150 million has been allocated to 276 schemes across England which are expected to deliver by March 2021.

The Government also made £23 million available in 2020/21 to tackle the substance dependence treatment needs of rough sleepers. This funding will be administered by Public Health England.

Winter provision for rough sleepers

On 13 October 2020, the Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government (MHCLG) announced a package of support to protect rough sleepers over the winter:

- A £10 million Cold Weather Fund to support local authorities to provide self-contained and Covid-secure accommodation.
- £2 million to enable faith and community groups to provide Covid-secure accommodation.
- Operating guidance to the sector to help night shelters open more safely, as a last resort and where not doing so would endanger lives.

A new 'Protect Programme', announced in November 2020 and backed by £15 million, will target support at ten local areas with high numbers of rough sleepers, with a particular focus on protecting those deemed clinically vulnerable. The Government has also asked all local authorities to update their rough sleeping plans and carry out a rapid assessment of need for everyone they accommodate.

In total, the Government has allocated over £700 million ring-fenced funding in 2020/21 to support rough sleepers and those at risk of rough sleeping.

Spending Review 2020

At Spending Review 2020 the Chancellor confirmed a total of £676 million resource funding for rough sleeping and homelessness in 2021/22. The Government also committed £87 million of capital funding in 2021/22 to support the delivery of long-term accommodation for rough sleepers.

Impact of measures to support rough sleepers

The Government's 'Everyone In' initiative has been credited with protecting rough sleepers and saving lives during the Covid-19 emergency.

On 18 April 2020 the Government reported that in England over 90% of rough sleepers (more than 5,400) known to local authorities at the beginning of the crisis had been offered accommodation as a result of 'Everyone In'.

By September 2020, 10,566 people were in emergency accommodation and 18,911 people had been provided with settled accommodation or move on support.

Homelessness organisations report that bringing everyone in has given them the opportunity to engage with and support many people who had previously been hard to reach, helping them to move on from rough sleeping. However, they also report that the flow of new rough sleepers onto the streets has continued throughout the pandemic and they have experienced increased demand for their services.

According to the Local Government Association (LGA), discussions with councils suggest a varying picture, with levels of rough sleeping in some areas much reduced from the start of the pandemic, whilst in other areas levels remain the same or have increased.

Data from the Combined Homelessness and Information Network (CHAIN) show that between July and September 2020 the number of people seen sleeping rough in London fell to 3,444, a 14% decrease from the same period the previous year.

Comment

Local authorities have welcomed the additional emergency funding to help them respond to the Covid-19 outbreak. However, the level of funding for homelessness services remains a concern. In addition, the LGA has criticised the fragmented, short-term and resource-intensive competitive nature of current funding and called for long-term and sustainable homelessness funding.

There is widespread concern over how local authorities can continue to support those with no recourse to public funds (NRPF) due to their immigration status.

As winter approaches, the Government's decision to allow communal night shelters for rough sleepers to reopen has been criticised.

The shortage of suitable move-on accommodation in many areas of the country remains a significant problem. Furthermore, the sector is concerned that homelessness levels may surge once the Government's temporary coronavirus housing, welfare and employment support measures come to an end and the full economic impact of the Covid-19 outbreak starts to take effect

Stakeholders have called for further measures to prevent homelessness, including: the national roll-out of Housing First; changes to the UK welfare system; protections for private renters; and increased investment in social rented housing.

The Housing, Communities and Local Government (HCLG) Select Committee published the interim report of its inquiry to assess the impact of the coronavirus crisis on homelessness, rough sleeping and the private rented sector on 22 May 2020. The report urged the Government to implement three key measures to protect rough sleepers against the impact of coronavirus:

- Provide local authorities with an annual £100 million dedicated funding stream to end rough sleeping in England once and for all.
- Compensate local authorities for provision offered to rough sleepers with no recourse to public funds as a result of the crisis and publish guidance on councils' use of discretion in these circumstances.
- Boost the immediate availability of appropriate supported housing, by providing targeted grant funding for local authorities and housing associations to acquire properties and removing restrictions on Right to Buy receipts.

The Government's response to the Committee was published on 25 June 2020.

The HCLG Committee has issued a further call for evidence to understand how effective Government support has been in tackling the negative impact of Covid-19 on tenants, landlords, rough sleepers and the homelessness. The deadline for submissions is Friday 27 November.

Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland

Housing policy is a devolved area. The paper briefly outlines the key measures in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland to protect rough sleepers during the Covid-19 emergency.

1. Support for rough sleepers

1.1 Background

Rough sleeping is the most extreme form of homelessness and many rough sleepers have high levels of complex needs. Many people who sleep rough do not have a statutory right to accommodation under the homelessness legislation,¹ for example because they are not deemed to be in a 'priority need' category or are ineligible due to their immigration status.

Successive governments have put in place initiatives to tackle rough sleeping. In 2018 the Government published a Rough Sleeping Strategy which was described as "the beginning of a nine year policy to ensure no one has to sleep rough again".² The current Conservative Government has committed to end rough sleeping by the end of this Parliament, and announced in February 2020 that Dame Louise Casey would be leading a review to advise what more can be done to reduce rough sleeping.³

The 2019 official count of rough sleepers in England recorded 4,266 people sleeping rough, this represents a fall of 9% on 2018 but an increase of 141% on the 2010 count (1,768).⁴ The Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government, Robert Jenrick, welcomed the decrease in numbers of rough sleepers saying, "the Government's strategy is working" but acknowledged that "We are acutely aware of the scale of the challenge before us."⁵

Rough sleepers are vulnerable to coronavirus (Covid-19); they are more likely to have underlying health conditions than the wider population and to face difficulties in following public health advice on self-isolation, social distancing and hygiene. They can also face barriers in accessing public health information and healthcare. Shared facilities used by rough sleepers – such as day centres, hostels and night shelters – may increase the risk of transmission of the virus.

The Covid-19 outbreak in England in spring 2020 prompted an unprecedented emergency public health response from the UK Government, local authorities and the voluntary sector to protect the rough sleeping population.

On 17 March 2020 the Government announced £3.2 million in emergency funding for local authorities to help rough sleepers during the Covid-19 outbreak. The funding was intended to reimburse authorities for the cost of providing accommodation and services to rough sleepers, and those at risk of rough sleeping, who were at risk of, or who had been diagnosed with, Covid-19.

Announcing the emergency funding, the Communities Secretary, Robert Jenrick, said:

Public safety and protecting the most vulnerable people in society from coronavirus is this government's top priority. We are working closely with councils and charities to ensure they have the support they need throughout this period.

The initial funding that I've announced today will ensure councils are able to put emergency measures in place to help some of the most vulnerable people in our society to successfully self-isolate.

I would urge anyone who is concerned about someone sleeping rough to use the government's StreetLink app⁶ to alert local support services who can reach out to those in need at this difficult time.⁷

On 26 March 2020 local authorities and homeless charities received an email from Dame Louise Casey, who was appointed to spearhead the Government's response to rough sleeping, calling on them to ensure rough sleepers were "inside and safe" by the weekend. "These are unusual times so I'm asking for an unusual effort," she wrote. "Many areas of the country have already been able to 'safe harbour' their people, which is incredible. What we need to do now is work out how we can get 'everyone in'."⁸

On the same day the Minister for Rough Sleeping and Housing, then Luke Hall, wrote to local authority leaders to update them on plans to protect rough sleepers during the Covid-19 pandemic. The letter asked local authorities to "bring in those on the streets to protect their health and stop wider transmission" and to support rough sleepers and other vulnerable homeless people into appropriate accommodation by the end of the week.

The letter set out the following principles and actions for local authorities:

The basic principles are to:

- focus on people who are, or are at risk of, sleeping rough, and those who are in accommodation where it is difficult to self-isolate, such as shelters and assessment centres
- make sure that these people have access to the facilities that enable them to adhere to public health guidance on hygiene or isolation, ideally single room facilities
- utilise alternative powers and funding to assist those with no recourse to public funds who require shelter and other forms of support due to the COVID-19 pandemic

8 Coronavirus: Support for rough sleepers

- mitigate their own risk of infection, and transmission to others, by ensuring they are able to self-isolate as appropriate in line with public health guidance

This should be done by taking the following programme of actions:

1. Convening a local coordination cell to plan and manage your response to COVID and rough sleeping involving the local authority (housing, social care and public health) and local NHS partners together. This would then report in to wider local COVID structures.
2. Seeking to stop homeless people from congregating in facilities such as day centres and street encampments where there is a higher risk of transmission.
3. Urgently procuring accommodation for people on the streets if you have not already done so – MHCLG will support you to do so if you are struggling to procure sufficient units.
4. Triaging people where possible into three cohorts driven by medical advice:
 - those with symptoms of COVID19;
 - those with pre-existing conditions but without symptoms; and
 - those without any of the above.

Attached to this letter is additional guidance on the approach that agencies should be taking to triaging agreed with NHS England and Public Health England.

5. Getting the social care basics such as food, and clinician care to people who need it in the self-contained accommodation. It is likely that you will need to utilise your commissioned homeless services to provide support to people in this accommodation and we urge you to work with the commissioned and non-commissioned sector to make sure there are adequate levels of support provided.

6. If possible, separating people who have significant drug and alcohol needs from those who do not.⁹

In response to the Minister's letter, the Chair of the Local Government Association, Cllr James Jamieson, said that this would be "a huge task".¹⁰ The Chief Executive of Crisis, Jon Sparkes, described the Government's request as a "landmark moment – and the right thing to do."¹¹

Local authorities across the country sought to secure accommodation for those who were sleeping rough or in accommodation where it was difficult to self-isolate, by block-booking hotel rooms and other en-suite accommodation (e.g. B&Bs, student accommodation, holiday rentals etc).¹² Under the Government's emergency coronavirus measures this type of accommodation was allowed to remain open when providing rooms to support homeless and other vulnerable people.¹³

Local authorities also worked with existing services for rough sleepers, health services and the voluntary sector to ensure that rough sleepers who used this emergency accommodation had the support, medical care and food they needed.

The Government has issued and updated guidance for those delivering homelessness services during the pandemic:

- On 29 June 2020 the Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government (MHCLG) updated the statutory Homelessness code of guidance for local authorities, advising local authorities to account for the impact of Covid-19 on vulnerability when assessing those in priority need for accommodation.¹⁴
- Public Health England (PHE) and the Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government (MHCLG) published COVID-19: guidance for commissioners and providers of hostel services for people experiencing homelessness and rough sleeping (last updated 30 October 2020).

1.3 Next Steps Accommodation Programme

On 2 May 2020 the Government announced a specialist taskforce, headed by Dame Louise Casey, would lead the next phase of the Government's support for rough sleepers during the Covid-19 pandemic. The taskforce is working with local authorities, charities, faith groups and other partners on plans to ensure those accommodated through the Everyone In initiative are helped into longer-term accommodation and as few people as possible return to life on the streets.¹⁵

The Minister for Rough Sleeping and Housing, then Luke Hall, wrote to local authority chief executives in England on 28 May 2020 asking them to set out next-step plans for accommodating and supporting rough sleepers brought off the streets during the pandemic. Authorities were requested to carry out individual assessments and consider a range of options to ensure people's housing, health and care needs are met:

...I am now asking that you put in place a plan of support for all rough sleepers accommodated in hotels and other forms of emergency accommodation during the response to the pandemic.

I understand that designing and delivering these plans represents another big challenge, and that many of you have begun this preparation. We currently have an opportunity for an unprecedented level of engagement with individuals who might otherwise be sleeping rough. Understanding people's needs now and planning the next steps will be crucial for continuing to save lives and supporting some of the most vulnerable people.

We are asking for these initial plans to be set out by 11 June in a co-production process with our team. Where appropriate, you should start moving people into accommodation as soon as they are able to do so, following the completion of a joint housing, health and care plan. I know that several of you have already begun this planning in earnest and initial discussions have taken place.

I appreciate that these are challenging timescales and that your plans will develop over time – but we need this information so we can work with you to support your next steps work over the coming weeks.¹⁶

The Government's Next Steps Accommodation Programme (NSAP)¹⁷ will provide funding to local authorities and their partners to ensure that those placed in emergency accommodation during the pandemic continue to have a safe place to stay and are helped into longer-term accommodation. The programme is comprised of two distinct funding streams:

i) £105 million in revenue funding for shorter-term/interim accommodation and immediate support.

On 24 June 2020 the Government announced £105 million for local authorities in England in 2020/21 to enable them to provide immediate accommodation and support to the approximately 15,000 vulnerable people who were being provided with emergency accommodation at that time.¹⁸

The funding can cover a range of interventions:

The following types of short-term accommodation will be considered eligible for funding under the programme. Funding can be used for both the provision of new accommodation, and the extension of existing accommodation:

- Accommodation owned by a university, RP or private landlord and available for interim use.
- PRS Access. This includes guaranteed rent or deposit schemes, mediation support and training, or landlord incentives.
- Supported Housing. Additional support can be offered to enable access to supported accommodation or social housing.

¹⁷ MHCLG, Jenrick launches £266 million housing fund for vulnerable people, 18 July 2020

¹⁸ HCWS311 24 June 2020

- Modular housing units where these can be made available with necessary facilities, including power and waste connections. These can usually be placed with temporary planning permission.
- Hotels. This includes funding to extend contracts, where this is the only or best solution to keep people in safe accommodation.
- Other forms of short-term accommodation to ensure that no one returns to the streets. Bidders are encouraged to be creative in their proposed response to reflect the expressed needs of individual rough sleepers.
- Employment support and training either to access work directly or to improve individuals' employability.
- Reconnections with friends and family, including local, national and international reconnections.
- Other forms of immediate support including tenancy sustainment support and immigration advice.¹⁹

On 17 September 2020, the Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government, Robert Jenrick, announced that 274 local authorities had been allocated £91.5 million for interim accommodation and support in 2020/21.²⁰ The remaining £13.5 million will be used to enable local authorities to tackle new or emerging challenges.²¹

ii) £161 million for longer-term move-on accommodation and support linked to this accommodation.

The March 2020 budget had allocated £381 million over four years for rough sleeping services (comprised of £237 million for accommodation for up to 6,000 rough sleepers and £144 million for associated support services).²²

On 24 May 2020, the Government announced that this funding would be increased to £433m, with £161 million²³ brought forward to 2020/21 to enable 3,300 units of longer-term, move-on accommodation to be delivered in the next 12 months.²⁴ Of the £161 million, £130 million is capital funding for the acquisition or renovation of homes and £31 million is revenue funding for tenancy-sustainment support.²⁵

- Purchase and repair of properties, either as freehold or on a long lease, where repairs may be required to bring the properties up to good standard to be let.
- Refurbishment and repurposing of existing stock. This includes purchasing white goods and furnishings for ready to use units. This could include schemes such as conversion of a former sheltered housing scheme into supported or move-on accommodation.
- Private Sector Leasing. i.e. where the bidder enters into a contract with a Private Sector Landlord agreeing to rent units over multiple years.
- Development of new build properties. Bidders should take account of the potential use of modular housing. In some instances, this can be commissioned and built faster than traditional house building, especially where units are ordered in bulk. Many types of units can be moved between sites depending on demand, and using temporary planning permission, or used as regular housing stock.
- Contribution towards social investment programmes that deliver the aims of the Next Steps Accommodation Programme. This applies only to local authorities who should consider blending grant with their own sources of funding for onwards investment to deliver housing. For example, there are a variety of property funds and initiatives that have the expertise to help deliver the programme's objectives while providing a revenue return on investment. These may include one or more of the types of accommodation listed above. Local authorities should explore this approach with their adviser before continuing.²⁶

The Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government's (MHCLG) ambition is that this part of the NSAP fund is used "to secure a long-term national asset, maintained in perpetuity as supported move-on homes for people recovering from rough sleeping".²⁷

On 29 October 2020, the Secretary of State for Housing, Communities and Local Government, Robert Jenrick, announced that over £150 million had been allocated to 276 schemes across England to deliver more than 3,300 new long-term homes for rough sleepers and other vulnerable people. The homes will be available by 31 March 2021.²⁸

Alongside the NSAP funding, MHCLG is making available the expertise from MHCLG's Rough Sleeping Initiative (RSI) and Homelessness Advice and Support (HAST) Adviser Teams to help coproduce plans for accommodation provision and related support services, under the oversight of the taskforce.

The Government also made £23 million available in 2020/21 to tackle the substance dependence treatment needs of rough sleepers.²⁹ This funding will be administered by Public Health England.

It was reported on 20 August 2020 that Dame Louise Casey had stepped down from her role as head of the specialist taskforce which is leading the next phase of the Government's support for rough sleepers during the Covid-19 pandemic.³⁰ To date a successor has not been announced.

1.4 Winter provision for rough sleepers

On 13 October 2020, the Ministry of Housing, Communities and Local Government announced a package of support to protect rough sleepers, and those at risk of becoming homeless, from life-threatening cold weather and the risks posed by coronavirus. The package is comprised of:

- A £10 million Cold Weather Fund³¹ to support local authorities to provide self-contained and Covid-secure accommodation.
- £2 million for faith and community groups to help them provide Covid-secure accommodation for rough sleepers.
- Comprehensive guidance to the sector, produced with Public Health England, Homeless Link and Housing Justice, to help shelters open safely, where not doing so would endanger lives.³²

Alongside the announcement the Minister for Housing and Rough Sleeping, Kelly Tolhurst, said:

Winter is clearly a dangerous time for people who sleep rough. These extra measures will help to protect this vulnerable group from life-threatening cold weather, as well as the risk of contracting COVID-19, and also provide them with support into move-on accommodation.

The work councils, providers, and the NHS has done since the start of the pandemic has saved lives and through this extra funding we will continue help them to rebuild their lives, part of our commitment to end rough sleeping for good.

In periods of severe cold weather local authorities, working with the voluntary sector, normally provide emergency shelters for rough sleepers. The Severe Weather Emergency Protocol (SWEP) is triggered by the forecast of freezing, near freezing or otherwise severe weather conditions. Some areas offer 'extended winter provision' which is the provision of additional services over an agreed time period e.g. every night from November to March. Emergency night shelters are often provided in settings which require people to share the space with others.

On 13 October 2020, MHCLG published Operating principles for commissioners and providers of night shelters for people experiencing rough sleeping. The principles provide guidance to support commissioners, staff and volunteers of night shelters should the decision be taken to open a shelter. The guidance states that “These settings should only be used as a last resort to protect against the risk to health and life of individuals remaining on the streets when other alternative options are unavailable, for example in very cold weather.”³³

On 5 November 2020, the Government announced a new scheme - the ‘Protect Programme’ – to support the ongoing efforts to provide accommodation for rough sleepers during the pandemic. The Programme will provide £15 million of additional support to local areas with high numbers of rough sleepers, with a particular focus on protecting those deemed clinically vulnerable. The programme will continue throughout the winter until March 2021.

The following ten areas will receive the additional funding:

- London
- City of Bristol
- Brighton and Hove
- Cornwall
- Bournemouth, Christchurch and Poole
- Manchester
- Salford
- Oxford
- Leicester
- Birmingham³⁴

According to the MHCLG press notice, the Protect Programme will run alongside the ongoing ‘Everyone In’ campaign.³⁵ In addition, local authorities have been asked to update their rough sleeping plans by the end of 2020:

All councils will have to update their rough sleeping plans by the end of the year, providing an overview of their support for those sleeping rough. They will also be asked to carry out a rapid assessment of need for everyone they accommodate and to consider time limited interventions for those rough sleeping now or new to rough sleeping.³⁶

In total, the Government has allocated over £700 million ring-fenced funding in 2020/21 to support rough sleepers and those at risk of rough sleeping.³⁷

Alongside this funding, by the end of October 2020, the Government had allocated £4.6 billion in un-ringfenced funding to help local authorities respond to coronavirus pressures across all their services, including homelessness services.³⁸

1.5 Support for the voluntary sector

The voluntary sector plays a key role in providing emergency accommodation and other support services, including food assistance, to those experiencing homelessness.

The Government included 'charities and workers delivering key frontline services' in the list of key workers who are critical to the Covid-19 response. During the Spring national lockdown, schools and childcare providers were asked to continue to provide care for children of these key workers, if required.

On 8 April 2020 the Chancellor, Rishi Sunak, announced a £750 million package of support for frontline charities across the UK.³⁹ £6 million of this funding has been allocated to support frontline homelessness charities. A total of 132 homelessness charities have successfully bid for funding from the Covid-19 Homelessness Response Fund.⁴⁰ According to Inside Housing magazine, an additional £5.5 million was subsequently made available to homelessness charities (£4.82m from The National Lottery Community Fund and £680,000 from Comic Relief).⁴¹ The funds are being administered by Homeless Link, the largest national membership charity for frontline homelessness services.

A number of initiatives have emerged to help charities access pools of volunteers and emergency funds during the Covid-19 outbreak. The charity Crisis, for example, established an emergency grants fund to support local groups who provide services to those experiencing homelessness. Homeless Link has collated current information on potential funding sources: Homelessness and Covid-19 funding opportunities.

1.6 Spending Review 2020

At Spending Review 2020 the Chancellor announced an additional £254 million of resource funding to tackle rough sleeping and homelessness.⁴² This additional funding will support frontline services through the Rough Sleeping Initiative and enable local authorities to fund their statutory duties to prevent homelessness. This takes total resource funding for rough sleeping and homelessness in 2021/22 to £676 million.⁴³

The Spending Review also confirmed that the Government will commit £87 million of capital funding in 2021/22 primarily to support the delivery of long-term accommodation for rough sleepers.⁴⁴

2. Impact of measures to support rough sleepers

On 18 April 2020 the Government reported that in England over 90% of rough sleepers (more than 5,400) known to local authorities at the beginning of the Covid-19 outbreak had been offered accommodation as a result of the 'Everyone In' initiative to protect rough sleepers.⁴⁵

The Government subsequently reported that in May 2020 a total of 14,610 people in England who were sleeping rough, or at risk of sleeping rough, had been provided emergency accommodation in response to the pandemic.⁴⁶ By September 2020, 10,566 people were in emergency accommodation and 18,911 people had been provided with settled accommodation or move on support.⁴⁷

The coronavirus emergency accommodation data includes people coming in directly from the streets, people previously housed in shared night shelters and people who had become vulnerable to rough sleeping during the pandemic. It is based on management information provided by local authorities and is not comparable to the Government's official annual statistics on rough sleeping.⁴⁸

Inside Housing magazine provides a more detailed breakdown of the outcomes for a cohort of people who were housed in emergency accommodation by the charity St Mungo's, which ran 28 hotels across England and provided support for a further 10:

Of the 3,085 individuals supported by the charity across these projects, 893 (29%) are still in the accommodation provided, while 2,951 have moved on in some way. Of these people, 751 (25.4%) moved to other COVID-19 emergency hotel accommodation, 311 (10.5%) moved to the private rented sector, 214 (7.3%) moved into interim accommodation and 201 (6.8%) to shared supported accommodation.

A total of 181 (6.1%) returned to sleeping rough, while the move-on location of 447 (15.1%) was unknown. The remainder of people mainly moved on to various other accommodation types, such as hostels and B&Bs, except for three who passed away.⁴⁹

Homelessness organisations have reported that bringing everyone in has given them the opportunity to engage with and support many people who had previously been hard to reach:

Providing this kind of wrap-around care has not only meant people have been physically protected from the pandemic, but also that they have been able to get closer to leaving homelessness behind for good, with many having done so already. Every day staff and volunteers have been able to help residents with important issues like applying for EU settled status or Universal Credit, looking for employment or helping to sort more long-term accommodation. All these things are so much harder to do when people are rough sleeping, living hand to mouth and moving from place to place. Providing unconditional accommodation first and support after has enabled many people to thrive.⁵⁰

Despite the success of the 'Everyone In' initiative, homelessness organisations report that the flow of new rough sleepers onto the streets has continued throughout the pandemic and they are experiencing increased demand for their services.⁵¹

A report by the Local Government Association, published on 19 November 2020, concluded that it was difficult to assess the impact of 'Everyone In' on levels of rough sleeping:

... in most areas, rough sleeper counts have been suspended. Our discussions with councils suggest a varying picture, with rough sleeping numbers much reduced in some areas, but in other places having returned to previous levels, or even exceeding them. This is due to some people returning to the streets, some intermittent rough sleepers not being accommodated during Everyone In because they were not rough sleeping at the time, and some new rough sleepers. The impact of the new English national lockdown is yet to be seen.⁵²

Data from the Combined Homelessness and Information Network (CHAIN), a multi-agency database funded by the Mayor of London and managed by the charity St Mungo's, show there was an initial sharp rise in the number of people seen sleeping rough in London around the start of the Covid-19 outbreak. Between April to June 2020, 4,227 rough sleepers were seen sleeping rough by outreach workers in London - a 33% increase on the same period the previous year.⁵³

Between July and September 2020 the number of people seen sleeping rough in London fell to 3,444, a 14% decrease from the same period the previous year. 55% (1,901) were seen rough sleeping for the first time.⁵⁴

It is widely acknowledged that without 'Everyone In' the loss of life as a result of the Covid-19 outbreak would have been much higher. The Office for National Statistics (ONS) reported that of deaths involving Covid-19 in England and Wales registered up to 26 June 2020, 16 were identified as of people who were homeless. identified deaths were in England and most were of men.⁵⁵ Responding to the data the Chief Executive of Crisis, Jon Sparkes, said:

Every one of these deaths is a tragedy - behind these figures are individuals, each with families, hopes and dreams. When the outbreak started, it was a stark reminder of the risk people who are homeless face from the virus – with no access to a place to self-isolate nor, in some cases, basic sanitation.

The situation could have been much worse had the government, local councils and charities not worked to quickly move many people sleeping rough and in night shelters into hotels, providing safe, emergency accommodation. This undoubtedly saved lives. We must now build on this...⁵⁶

Research, published in The Lancet, sought to model the avoided deaths and health-care use among people experiencing homelessness during the first wave of Covid-19 in England (i.e. the peak of infections occurring between February and May 2020). The study estimated that, as a result of measures implemented to protect the homeless population, 266 deaths were avoided, as well as 21,092 infections, 1,164 hospital admissions and 338 admissions to Intensive Care Units.⁵⁷

3. Comment

3.1 Stakeholders

The Government's 'Everyone In' initiative has been credited with protecting rough sleepers and saving lives during the Covid-19 emergency.

Local authorities have welcomed the additional emergency funding to help them respond to the Covid-19 outbreak. However, the funding of homelessness services remains a concern. Research by the charity Crisis concluded that:

There was also a concern over funding a homelessness response in the immediate future. In England, local authorities and voluntary sector organisations were concerned about the sustainability of funding emergency accommodation over winter. In many areas they had already overspent and even with additional funding announcements from MHCLG it is not clear if the procurement of temporary accommodation can continue at this pace.⁵⁸

The Local Government Association's submission to the Comprehensive Spending Review 2020 said that the 'Everyone In' initiative had "created a significant strain on councils' resources, adding to existing financial pressures".⁵⁹ The submission criticised the fragmented, short-term and resource-intensive competitive nature of current funding and called for long-term and sustainable homelessness funding.⁶⁰

The LGA has also published Lessons learnt from councils' response to rough sleeping during the COVID-19 pandemic (November 2020) which concluded that "The success of Everyone In demonstrates that, given the mandate and funding, councils, working with their partners, have the means to end the vast majority of rough sleeping."⁶¹ The report highlighted the following outstanding issues:

- Difficulties with assisting people with no recourse to public funds – who represent a significant proportion of those at risk of rough sleeping in some areas.
- The shortage of affordable housing (particularly one-bed accommodation in both the public and private rented sectors) is an inevitable blocker in finding move on accommodation.
- A one-off exercise will not be enough to maintain long-term reductions in rough sleeping in most areas - a more sustained effort is needed. Whilst there was enthusiasm for maintaining a more proactive approach to accommodating rough sleepers and those at risk, the resources were not there in most councils to be able to achieve this.

- Many councils are concerned about their ability to provide adequate cold weather provision this winter in a way which does not increase the risk of Covid-19 infection.
- It was often difficult to get access to appropriate health services, and especially mental health services, to work with the cohort accommodated during 'Everyone In'.⁶²

Individuals who have no recourse to public funds (NRPF) because of their immigration status are not entitled to homelessness assistance and other support such as welfare benefits and social housing. Under the Government's 'Everyone In' initiative, local authorities were encouraged to assist all rough sleepers into emergency accommodation, regardless of their immigration status. However, there is widespread concern about how local authorities can continue to support those with NRPF.⁶³ A broad range of Parliamentarians and external stakeholders have called on the Government to suspend NRPF conditions in response to the pandemic, to reduce the risk of people being forced to return to the streets.

In response the Government has asserted that the legal position with regards to NRPF has not changed and local authorities have discretion to assist individuals in certain circumstances:

Local authorities have powers to use their judgment in assessing what support they may lawfully give to each person on an individual basis, considering that person's specific circumstances and support needs. Local authorities will already be used to making such judgements on accommodating individuals who might otherwise be ineligible, during extreme weather for example, where there is a risk to life.

Local authorities also have powers to provide basic safety net support, regardless of immigration status, if it is established that there is a genuine care need that does not arise solely from destitution, for example, where there are community care needs, migrants with serious health problems or family cases.⁶⁴

The Commons Library briefing paper CBP08888: Coronavirus: Calls to ease No Recourse to Public Funds conditions provides further information on the support available for people subject to NRPF.

The Government has temporarily suspended an EU derogation to allow a specific group of job seeking EEA nationals who are rough sleeping to access certain non-statutory homelessness services. This will extend to emergency accommodation and floating support for a maximum of 12 weeks.⁶⁵ The suspension will remain in place until 31 December 2020 (until the end of the transition period), at which point new rules will apply under the new immigration system.

As winter approaches, the Government's decision to allow communal night shelters for rough sleepers to reopen has been criticised. Eighteen leading health and homelessness organisations, include the British Medical Association and the Faculty of Public Health, wrote an open letter to the Prime Minister (October 2020) warning of the double threat of coronavirus and cold weather to rough sleepers, and urging the Government to provide self-contained accommodation as a priority due to the high risk of coronavirus transmission in communal night shelters.⁶⁶

Labour's Shadow Secretary of State for Housing, Thangam Debbonaire, criticised the Government's package of support to protect rough sleepers over winter, pointing out that the £10 million Cold Winter Fund was less than the funding provided the previous year:

"It is extraordinary that, during a global pandemic that is exacerbated by cold weather, the government has given less ... than last year," she said. "As we enter a second Covid spike, the government's failure to prepare for a winter homelessness crisis risks lives and public health. We need strong leadership from the government to keep its promise to end rough sleeping for good."⁶⁷

The Chief Executive of Crisis, Jon Sparkes, said that the decision to reopen winter night shelters was "completely unacceptable":

With temperatures dropping and coronavirus cases on the rise, this funding falls short of the bold action we need to keep people sleeping on our streets safe this winter.

Back in March, the government rightly decided that night shelters and hostels were not a safe environment for people during the pandemic. It's completely unacceptable that this approach should now change as we go into winter when the threat remains the same. We must not force people to choose between freezing on the street or a shelter, when both needlessly put lives at risk.

We urgently need the government to see sense on this matter and keep winter night shelters closed. They must instead provide councils with the crucial funding they need to provide everyone forced to sleep rough with safe, self-contained accommodation, as they did in March. Anything but this is risking lives.⁶⁸

Inside Housing reports that, due to the risks to clients and staff, “a number of the biggest homelessness charities, including Crisis and St Mungo’s, have said they will not be opening their shelters this year.”⁶⁹

The shortage of suitable move-on accommodation in many areas of the country remains a significant problem. Furthermore, the sector is concerned that homelessness levels may surge once the Government’s temporary coronavirus housing,⁷⁰ welfare and employment support measures come to an end and the full economic impact of the Covid-19 outbreak starts to take effect.⁷¹

The charity Crisis has launched a ‘Home for All’ campaign calling on the Government to protect people experiencing homelessness for the duration of the pandemic and prevent further homelessness through:

- The introduction of a new duty on local authorities in England, backed by funding, to provide emergency accommodation for people with nowhere safe to stay in the next 12 months;
- The national roll-out of Housing First in England;
- Changes to ensure no one across Britain is left without a safe place to stay because of their immigration status; and
- Changes to the UK welfare system, and protections for private renters alongside increased investment in the provision of homes for social rent in England to ensure everyone can afford a home.⁷²

Crisis, supported by over 40 other homelessness and migrant organisations, has also called for emergency homelessness legislation to protect people from homelessness during the Covid-19 crisis.⁷³ The Bill, drafted by Garden Court Chambers on behalf of the charity, includes provisions to temporarily:

- a) extend the provision of accommodation to all those who have nowhere safe to stay for a period of 12 months after the Minister’s instruction of 26 March 2020 is withdrawn and providing that people accommodated under this duty are eligible for public funds without restrictions being imposed by reference to their immigration status or nationality;
- b) give the Courts the flexibility to refuse to make possession orders or to make those possession orders suspended on terms where rent arrears have accrued due to financial pressure on the tenant as a result of the Covid-19 emergency; and
- c) suspend the operation of the benefit cap for the period of the public health emergency to assist tenants in paying their rent.⁷⁴

Homelessness organisations have also voiced concerns about a leadership vacuum after Dame Louise Casey - who was leading the Government's coronavirus response to rough sleeping – stepped down from the role. They have called on the Government to reaffirm its commitment to carrying out a review of rough sleeping policy.⁷⁵

3.2 Parliament

The interim report of the Housing Communities and Local Government (HCLG) Select Committee's inquiry into the Impact of Covid-19 on homelessness and the private rented sector (published on 22 May 2020), urged the Government to implement three key measures to protect rough sleepers against the impact of coronavirus:

- Use this crisis to end rough sleeping in England once and for all.

The Government's taskforce must take advantage of this golden opportunity to ensure every single person taken from the streets does not return to rough sleeping. The Government must estimate the cost of a housing-led solution with appropriate wrap-around support, likely to be at least £100m a year, and provide this as a dedicated funding stream to councils.

- We appeal on humanitarian grounds for the Government to improve its support to councils for people with no recourse to public funds during this crisis, or hundreds will return to the streets with potentially disastrous consequences.

We recommend that the Government should guarantee it will compensate councils for provision offered to rough sleepers with no recourse to public funds as a result of the current crisis. The Government needs to urgently publish guidance on councils' use of discretion in these circumstances and clarify what people can or cannot claim when they have no recourse to public funds.

- The Government must ensure that rough sleepers do not end up back on the streets due to a lack of suitable housing.

The Government needs to act to boost the immediate availability of appropriate supported housing, by providing targeted grant funding for councils and housing associations to acquire properties, using the National Clearing House Scheme from 2008 as a starting point. We also ask the Government to remove restrictions on Right to Buy receipts to provide councils with more flexibility.⁷⁶
